WEATHER KEY POINTS

11/11/20 - 11/17/20

Wednesday-Thursday

- Generally dry weather expected through Thursday, though a few small chances for light rain and high elevation snow will exist near the Oregon border
- Cold mornings and cool daytime temperatures are expected, including widespread freezing temperatures in the mornings

Thursday Night-Saturday

- A couple of storm systems will impact the state Thursday night through Saturday
 - Most of the precipitation will fall over the northern half of the state, though parts of the southern half of California could see some light precipitation at times
 - Moderate rain, accumulating mountain snowfall, and strong, gusty winds are all possible across northern California with these storms
 - Light to moderate snow is expected at Sierra pass levels, with travel impacts possible

Sunday-Tuesday

- Generally drier weather looks to develop across much of the state Sunday and Monday, though storms could continue to move across the California/Oregon border
- Another storm is possible Tuesday across northern California
